SACRED HEART PICNIC.

Arrangements Being Made
For a Pleasant
Outing.

A large concourse from the different parishes in the city will assemble at Riverview Park to attend the picnic and outing of the congregation of the Sacred Heart church. The various attractions will be presided over by ladies of well-known tact and persuasiveness, and they should reap an abundant harvest. At the dining tables will be met a number of matrons of affability, and the agility with which they will serve their patrons will add to the pleasure of the excellent meals which they will provide.

The young ladies who will have charge of the refreshment stands are the prettiest and the most popular in the parish, and they will add much toward making the affair a success socially as well as financially. There will be dancing and numerous games and innocent sports, for which the gentlemen have made ample provision. Besides the foregoing there will be many handsome prizes and articles disposed of at different stands in the park. The interest is growing daily, and a large meeting of those interested will be held by the school hall Tuesday night.

IRISH PALACE

Will Be Erected on Lexington
Avenue, New York
City.

Recently the Irish Palace Building Association was incorporated in New York City. This organization has for its object the furtherance of the mental culture and improvement of men and women of the Irish race in New York State, their literary advancement and the erection of a building which will be a meeting-place for all Irish societies and an armory for the First Regiment, Irish Volunteers. The Directors are Roderick J. Kennedy, William H. Walker and Edward Cassin, of New York City.

A site has been purchased on the corner of Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Fifteenth street for $65,000, of which $40,000 has already been paid. There are now eleven houses on the land, all of them rented, and the income will be sufficient to pay all interest charges and taxes, leaving the principal intact.

The $40,000 was obtained by putting out at interest the $35,000 earned by the Irish Fair held three years ago. Former Judge Edward Browne, who drew up the corporation papers, said: "For the first time in the history of the Irish race in America a fund has been set aside and kept for the use for which it was intended. It was a herculean task to accomplish this."

It is expected that the Irish women will hold more great fairs to raise money to lift the small encumbrance on the property, and also assist in paying for the construction of the proposed palace.

Coercion is rampant in Ireland now under the Tory Government. The "peelers" in Ballinrobe brutally attacked the people with their batons and other instruments of torture. The residents were peacefully walking through the streets of their own town, when the "peelers," who are paid out of Irish taxes levied on the people of Mayo, brutally assaulted them. This is what the Famine Queen's visit did for the Irish.

MODERN YANKEE.

A jigger of Irish,
Another of Dutch,
A light dash of English,
Be careful, not much,
Or this last ingredient
May turn very sour
And spoil the whole business
In less than an hour.A schooner of German,
A pony of French,
A little Italian
To soften their wrench,
A stiff mug of Swedish,
A few drops of Scotch—
Just a little, you know,
If you don't want a botch.You may add a few Welsh,
But listen, not many,
'Twill be just as good
If you shouldn't use any;
A spoonful of Russians
(Well flavored with Finns);
At this critical moment
The real mixing begins.For now comes the Danish,
The Poles and the Jews,
With numberless others
From whom you may choose;
Such excellent flavors
As Belgians and Japs,
Canadians and Cubans,
And Spaniards, perhaps.Now here is liquor
With never a tax on,
All foam and no body,
Labeled Anglo-Saxon;
It's counterfeit English
And every one knows
We've enough of the real,
So out it goes.Now pour in the colors—
Brown, black, red and yellow—
Each in his own way
A number one fellow;
Then shake up the whole
And strain it quite well—
What the mixture will be
'Tis easy to tell.So now, kind heaven,
We gratefully thank thee,
For this precious elixir
Produces the Yankee.

NOTED NEWSBOY DEAD.

Pat Murphy Succumbs to the Injuries Sustained in 1894.

John Murphy, nicknamed Pat, who for many years was noted as king of the Louisville newsboys, died Tuesday afternoon at the residence of his brother Michael, 1208 Zane street, after an illness of quite long duration, resulting from an accident in which he was run over by a dray some years ago. The deceased was born in Ireland fifty years ago, but came to this country with his parents while a child. The family removed to this city in 1863, when young Pat's career as a newsboy began among the stormy scenes which prevailed here during the height of the civil war. An old-time newspaper man, who knew him well, writes that the foundation of the boy's success was laid by his enterprise and foresight at this time. Good prices ruled for Louisville and Southern papers, as every one read all the news obtainable about the battles. But the facilities of these papers for getting reliable information were poor. Northern papers were almost a tabooed article, and Murphy saw the opening. He crossed the Ohio in a skiff many times, and once even had to swim. Running the guard lines, he came back loaded down with Cincinnati and Northern papers, which he sold at prices ranging from $1 to $2.

As the years went on he stuck to the paper business, despite the fact that at that time it was thought odd for a grown man to hawk papers. He was wise, for he built up a long list of customers, who reserved their patronage for him. He made money hand over fist. It is well known that had he saved his earnings he would have left a comfortable fortune behind him when he died. He did save quite a respectable sum, but he had a big heart and during his career he gave liberally to every charitable project brought to his attention and relieved many cases of want quietly and unknown to his friends. Some of his deeds in this line, of course, leaked out, and many anecdotes are told of his acts of charity. When the river trade was far better than it is now he used to sell many papers on the levee to passengers on the boats. It is told of him that he once paid the fare to Paducah of a destitute woman and six children, whom the Captain of a steamer was about to put ashore here. None of his fellow-newsboys suffered while he was around.

Despite the fact that he spent the biggest part of his earnings in doing good, Murphy managed to accumulate several thousand dollars. His misfortunes came all together, as is usually the case. In the panic of 1893 his savings, which were in the Masonic Bank, were swept away. Shortly afterward he was run over by a dray on the river front. He continued in the business for three years longer, when his broken health compelled him to retire.

He is survived by two brothers, Michael and Daniel, residing since the death of their mother with the former. The funeral services took place Thursday morning from Sacred Heart church, the interment being in St. Louis cemetery.

There is a growing feeling that more interest should be taken in the Hibernian Knights. This company should consist of at least one hundred well drilled and uniformed men.
